Contracts and the Evolution of Architectural Practice

Reading time: 20 min

Don't read this article as guidance on how to complete an Australian building contract. Instead, consider its larger argument: contracts don't simply document architectural practice—they structure relationships between architects, clients and builders, allocate responsibility and risk, and have helped shape what architects actually do.

As you work on A3, consider: What relationship or responsibility is each of your contract documents making explicit?
